

JAMES M. KENSOK

Vice President and
Chief Information Officer
Avista Corp.

James M. Kensok is vice president and chief information officer for Avista Corp. He is responsible for the leadership and strategic advancement of enterprise technology strategies.

Kensok started his career with Avista in 1996 as an internal information systems auditor. He has also held positions as manager and director of information systems for Avista Utilities and as chief security officer for Avista Corp.

Prior to joining Avista, Kensok was the director of an information technology professional services practice and the manager of technology support services at a large international financial services software and computer hardware development company.

Kensok has more than 25 years of national and international experience in developing and managing information systems, network communications, strategic sourcing and executive leadership of advanced enterprise technology environments.

Kensok is a graduate of Eastern Washington University, with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Management Information Systems Design.

Kensok is a member of the University of Idaho's Utility Executive Course advisory board, the City of Spokane's Technology Advisory Board and treasurer of the Eastern Washington University Foundation board of directors. He is also a member of the Western Energy Institute's Corporate Services program development team and the Edison Electric Institute's Technology Advisory Board.